On behalf of the University of Washington and the Department of Comparative Literature I would like to welcome you to the 2015 American Comparative Literature conference in downtown Seattle. Unlike several recent conferences, ours is taking place in the heart of the city and not on our beautiful campus. It is definitely a co-production, with the local organizers working in harmony with the wonderful ACLA Secretariat and Board. Alex Beecroft and Andy Anderson have been our indispensable partners-at-a-distance, and the chief gratitude for the success of the meeting belongs to them and to the other officers of the Association.

On campus, I am grateful to Gary Handwerk and Míceál Vaughan for spearheading our organizational efforts and to Yomi Braester and Sonnet Retman for joining with me and representatives of ACLA in selecting the panels. That was a pleasant task because of the high quality of the proposals, tinged with regret when we had to say no to some when we would rather have said yes. Daniel Koch, Allison Zogg, and the other staff at the Sheraton have answered every inquiry--and there have been many--instantly and fully. Nobody, though, can compare with Will Arighi, who has done everything else with dispatch, accuracy, and imagination. He is the best advertisement our program could ever want.

And, yes, money has been a welcome support as well. I am delighted that every language and literature department on campus has contributed generously to help make the conference possible: Asian Languages and Literature, Classics, Comparative Literature, English, French and Italian Studies, Germanics, Near Eastern Languages and Civilization, Scandinavian Studies, Slavic Languages and Literatures, and Spanish and Portuguese Studies. We have also received generous contributions from the College of Arts and Sciences, the Graduate School, Modern Language Quarterly, and the Simpson Center for the Humanities.

Finally, we are grateful to our two plenary speakers--great scholars, innovative builders, multilingual, and wide-ranging, and well as superb performers. Don't miss them.

The University of Washington is older than Amazon, older than Starbucks, older than Microsoft, older even than Boeing and Weyerhaeuser, indeed older than the State of Washington. Its campus, an easy bus ride from the Sheraton Hotel, follows a layout originally designed by the famous landscape architect John Charles Olmsted and is beautifully planted with many specimen trees, including a quadrangle of Japanese cherry trees that are usually in full bloom in late March. The Comparative Literature program was established shortly after World War II; among its earliest laureates is Herbert Lindenberger. Long renowned for its strengths in northern European literatures, critical theory, and intellectual history, the Department has been an incubator for interdisciplinary humanities programs including Comparative History of Ideas, the Critical Theory Program, Textual Studies, and Cinema and Media Studies, and for its growing partnerships with East Asian, South Asian, and Near Eastern studies on our campus. Soon to be renamed the Department of Comparative Literature, Cinema and Media, the Department is particularly proud of its cinema studies faculty, who have made it a leading center for the study of world cinema. For decades, Modern Language Quarterly, established at the University of Washington in 1940 and edited in our department, has been a leading force in the study of literary history. Our graduates hold positions at Stanford, Duke, Johns Hopkins, and other leading colleges and universities around North America and abroad. While you are in Seattle, we invite you to visit our campus and the campus museums, as well as the cultural and scenic attractions of downtown Seattle, which can be easily explored on foot, and, for those with extra time, the beauties of the region.

Department of Comparative Literature
University of Washington

Registration: Registration will begin at 5:00pm on Thursday, March 26th, in the foyer space outside of the Metropolitan Ballroom, located on Level 3 of the Seattle Sheraton. It will continue in the foyer space outside of the Metropolitan Ballroom on Friday and Saturday between 8:00am and 12:10pm, then between 2:30pm and 6:30pm.

Reception: All conference participants are cordially invited to the President's Address and the Award Ceremony on Thursday, March 26th, from 6:00pm – 7:15pm, immediately followed by the Opening Night Reception, from 7:30pm – 9:00pm. Both events will take place in the Metropolitan Ballroom, located on Level 3 of the Seattle Sheraton.

Stream Locations and Times: Seminars are divided into four streams. While most seminars will take place in the same room and at the same time over all days, a small number of panels in the C stream will meet for an additional session on Friday in the D stream, or an additional session on Saturday in the D stream. There are also a very small number of panels that will meet in different rooms on different days. Please consult the detailed program guide information for specific information about panel locations and times. Maps of the hotel layout have been included at the back of the program guide.

A/V and Media Needs: All rooms will be equipped with standard A/V equipment. Panelists are responsible for providing their own laptops and any adaptors they may require. The ACLA will have A/V assistance available on hand should you require any assistance. The login information for the Seattle Sheraton wireless network is printed on the back of your conference badge for your convenience.

Online Program Guide: There is a "live" program guide (smartphone and tablet friendly) on the ACLA website which is made available for your use during the Annual Meeting. The online version of the program guide will feature the most complete and up to date information about the Annual Meeting and will be modified as the event proceeds. It can be located online at <http://acla.org/program-guide>. Special features included in the online program guide are direct linking to Social Media (Facebook/Twitter), email access, and a feedback form (which is delivered directly to the ACLA). We encourage you to utilize all of these unique features of the new "live" program guide during your time in Seattle.

Refreshments: Coffee, tea, water, pastries and fruit will be available at regular intervals throughout the conference. Please consult the detailed schedule for specific times and locations.

SUBSTANCE
A REVIEW OF THEORY AND LITERARY CRITICISM

3/year | ISSN: 0049-2426 | E-ISSN: 1527-2095

"SubStance (is) one of the most influential journals of theory and criticism in the United States"
— Le Monde

A review of theory and literary criticism, SubStance has a long-standing reputation for publishing innovative work on literature and culture. While its main focus has been on French literature and continental theory, the journal is known for its openness to original thinking in all the discourses that interact with literature, including philosophy, natural and social sciences, and the arts. Join the discerning readers of SubStance, who enjoy crossing borders and challenging limits.

Special Issue: David Mitchell in the Labyrinth of Time, Spring 2015
Featuring a review of The Bone Clocks and an interview with the author.

The Journal of World Literature aspires to bring together scholars interested in developing the concept of World Literature, and to provide the most suitable environment for contributions from all the world's literary traditions. It creates a forum for re-visiting global literary heritages, discovering valuable works that have been undeservedly ignored, and introducing aspects of the transnational global dissemination of literature, with translation as a focus.

The journal welcomes submissions that can concurrently imagine any literary tradition, in any language, moving beyond national frames to simultaneously discuss and develop the cosmopolitan threads of a variety of literary traditions. It also welcomes contributions from scholars of different research backgrounds working collaboratively as well as from group research projects interested in showcasing their findings, in order to meet the challenge of a wider and deeper discussion of literature's networks.

The Yearbook of Comparative Literature

The Yearbook of Comparative Literature is dedicated to the publication of theoretically informed research in literary studies with a comparative, intercultural, or interdisciplinary emphasis.

UPCOMING VOLUME

"Rereading Faces" (Vol. 59 / 2013)

The upcoming special volume "Rereading Faces" (vol. 59 / 2013), features articles and memorabilia devoted to Matei Călinescu's work and life, signed by North-American, Western European and Romanian scholars.

Beyond being a soft spoken, well-mannered and tasteful gentleman, Matei Călinescu (1934-2009) was one of the significant intellectuals of his age. In addition to original poetry and prose, he contributed to Romanian, English and French studies in comparative literature, literary theory and intellectual history. His most influential works are Five Faces of Modernity (1987), Rereading (1993), and The Life & Opinions of Zacharias Lichter (1969).
