Position description

The Department of East Asian Studies at the University of California, Irvine is seeking a dynamic scholar to fill a tenure-track position at the level of assistant professor in classical and/or medieval Chinese literature and culture (historical periods prior to the Ming). The position will start Fall 2023. Ph.D. in relevant fields is required by the time of appointment. We especially welcome applicants who read texts from an interdisciplinary angle. The successful candidate is expected to teach classical Chinese and courses in their specialized field, to share the teaching load of survey courses and to advise and mentor graduate students. Underrepresented minority candidates are strongly encouraged to apply.

Please upload the following application materials: (a) curriculum vitae, (b) cover letter, (c) statement addressing research interests and scholarship including your future directions, (d) statement describing teaching interests, philosophy and experience, (e) Inclusive Excellence Activities statement addressing demonstrated ability to mentor a diverse student body, especially first-generation and underrepresented minority students, (f) graduate transcript(s), (g) teaching evaluations, and (h) three letters of recommendation.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, please complete your application by November 11th, 2022.

Institutional Reference Check: The University of California is committed to creating and maintaining a community dedicated to the advancement, application, and transmission of knowledge and creative endeavors through academic excellence; where all individuals who participate in University programs and activities can work and learn together in a safe and secure environment, free of violence, harassment, discrimination, exploitation, or intimidation. In support of this commitment, and as a means to address all forms of academic misconduct, UC Irvine will conduct an institutional reference check on recruitment finalists of Senate Ladder-Rank Professor and Professor of Teaching series, at all ranks (i.e. assistant, associate, full), prior to extending a formal offer of appointment. Applications submitted via AP Recruit must include a signed copy of the Authorization to Release Information Form for consideration.
